

The intermediate space created below the folding bridges generates a transition between exterior and interior and transition between living and working areas. The bridges allow flexibility and changes during the time.

